

Attention all MRI patients:

Many athletic clothing companies are using metallic fibers in exercise spandex, compression wear, and stretch clothing, including sports bras and underwear.

When the label states antimicrobial, in other words it kills microbes or bacteria, it does that with nano silver technology.

This clothing is made from conductive materials, which can cause heating and burns during an MRI

There have been reported cases of thermal burns on patients due to silver embedded micro fibers in fabrics.

If you are wearing clothing, including undergarments that could potentially have these fibers please notify your technologist.

We will provide you with clothing to wear.
Your safety is our priority!
